Name That Tune

Rules

1. Three-person teams will collaborate to correctly determine the title of a song played by the judge. The song title will be legibly written on a white board. Any question as to the legibility of a letter in the word will make the title incorrect. White boards will be concealed until the judge requests that they be presented. A correct song title will advance the team to the next song. An incorrect title will result in the team being eliminated from the competition. (Please see #6 & #7 below for a second chance)
2. No electronic equipment of any kind will be allowed by team members during the spelling bee. Cheating is prohibited. Violators will be eliminated.
3. Teams will have 30 seconds to write the title on the white board. Teams will be notified when 5 seconds remains. When time has expired teams will be asked to lay their markers down.
4. Teams will compete in three preliminary rounds with the final team from each round advancing to the final round.
5. If a song eliminates all remaining teams in a round, all teams missing that song title will be reinstated.
6. Teams can be “Bought Back” into the competition by themselves or anyone in attendance for $50. Bid numbers will be available for those wanting to buy a team back in, auction style. Anyone interested in buying a team back in will have 15 seconds from the time the team has been eliminated to do so. BEF Board members will be available to assist in the buy-back.
7. Teams can purchase Life-lines for $20 each, prior to the start of each round. A Life-line will allow a team to consult with someone in attendance for help with the current song title. Life-lines do not permit the use of electronic devices. Life-lines can be used whenever the team chooses, but must be used before the 30 second time limit has expired. Teams using a Life-line will have an additional 30 seconds from the time they use their Life-line to present their song title. Only the team using a Life-line will be allocated the additional time. Life-lines can be kept for the final round, if not used.
